

Report on Soft Skills

Soft skills training programs are designed to equip students with essential competencies that significantly enhance their personal and professional development. These programs focus on a range of crucial skills, including interview techniques, effective time management, strategic decision-making, and advanced problem-solving abilities. By participating in such training sessions, students gain the confidence and capabilities needed to excel in campus recruitment processes as well as competitive examinations, preparing them to navigate real-world challenges successfully.

In addition to soft skill training, the Training and Placement Cell plays a pivotal role in fostering the holistic growth of students. It organizes a variety of value-added programs and initiatives aimed at enhancing their employability and personal development. These programs provide students with opportunities to expand their knowledge, improve their communication skills, and develop leadership qualities. By participating in workshops, seminars, and industry-specific training sessions, students are better prepared to meet the expectations of recruiters and employers, ensuring they are well-equipped to thrive in their careers. Ultimately, such initiatives contribute to shaping well-rounded individuals who are ready to succeed in both academic and professional arenas.
